

Jared Daigle, MA

Jared's been described by clients as "thoughtful," intelligent," and "a great problem-solver." One client commented that "Jared was very knowledgeable and open to hearing everyone's ideas and answers to course questions." Jared's unique ability to ensure that every voice is heard makes him one of our more popular instructors. Jared creates courses that engage participants and ensure they can apply writing concepts in meaningful ways.

Jared earned both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Marquette (Ring Out Ahoya!). He teaches a variety of courses for Hurley Write, including "Exceptional Technical Writing," "Writing for Engineers," and "Writing Investigation Reports," in addition to specialty courses.

Jared's client list includes Facebook, Cambrex Pharmaceuticals, Gator Bio, and Calumet, to name just a few.

What Makes Jared Unique

- He believes that everyone can improve their writing skills if they have a strategy.
- Jared is able to quickly pivot to answer any writing-related questions that come up.
- He ensures that participants are engaged so that they can practice their skills in an environment where they feel respected and where their contributions are valued.
